WATER RATES GO UP

CONSUMERS OF CITY WATER MUST PAY MORE FOR SERVICE

INCREASE 20 PER CENT

Council Also Adopts Poll Tax and City Levy for General Revenue Tax at Last Night's Session

With an increase that approximates about twenty per cent over the old rates the city council last night approved an ordinance ordering a raise in water rates to consumers of city water. The increase is effective at once.

The new ordinance provided for charges for city water according to the following schedule:

Fifty cents per month for every water service.

First 2,000 cubic feet, 30 cents per 100 feet.

Next 3,000 cubic feet, 25 cents per 100 feet.

Next 5,000 cubic feet, 20 cents per 100 feet.

Next 5,000 cubic feet, 15 cents per 100 feet.

Next 5,000 cubic feet, 10 cents per 100 feet.

Next 30,000 cubic feet, 7 cents per 100 feet.

Any amount over 50,000 cubic feet 5 cents per 100 feet.

The ordinance was presented by J. L. Ford, president of the board of public works, who explained that it had been shown that the efficient operation of the water plant demanded an increased revenue, due to the increased cost of production. Coal, labor and material have all greatly advanced in price, it was shown, and to keep the plant in efficient working shape the raise was decided on.

The proposal was discussed at some length by members of the council, with six members voting for increase. Aldermen Jones and Strong voted against it.

The council also passed a poll tax ordinance providing for payment by all persons between the ages of 21 and 50 of a tax of two days labor or its equivalent of $2.

A third ordinance passed provided for a tax levy for general revenue purposes for the city and is four mills on the dollar valuation. The library tax levy was placed at one mill as formerly.

CONTINUE CLEAN-UP

BOY SCOUTS REPORT MUCH DIRT YET REMAINS IN CITY

REPORT 294 PREMISES

Streets and Alleys In Four Wards Are Visited — Report Shows Largest Number Are In Second Ward

Did Maryville do a good job of cleaning up during the week just ended, in which the campaign by the mayor and the welfare committee of the Commercial Club has been under way?

The Boy Scouts say that the city is still in an uncleanly condition, reporting this morning a total of 294 premises where trash, refuse and rubbish were found in quantities.

Over twenty Scouts in Troop 1 started out early this morning to check up and see if the clean-up campaign was a success. They were instructed to visit all alleys, streets and premises and get the name when convenient and the street address where the rubbish was found. Among other places noted by the Boy Scouts on their report at noon was the city hall, the county jail and the public library, at which places refuse, ashes and trash were found.

The report by wards is as follows:
First ward, 33 premises.
Second ward, 107 premises.
Third ward, 32 premises.
Fourth ward (not complete) 22 premises.

In all cases the address is given, together with the nature of the trash found. The report will be turned over to Mayor W. O. Garrett.

Mayor Garrett urges residents to continue the campaign next week and the week after, for with spring rains, refuse and trash left to rot and breed flies is a menace to the health of the city.

Fighting Is Limited to Reconnaisance and Intermittent Artillery Operations—Allied Airmen Do Much Damage

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, May 18.—Heavy cannonading developed during the night in the Givenschy and Robecq sectors of the Flanders front, the war office announced today. Big German guns were active also in Lens and Hazebrouck areas. Aside from these activities there was nothing to report, the war office states.

Further light upon the hesitancy of the Germans to renew their twin offensive come from documents captured from German officers. These show the German losses were terrific in the initial stages of the big drive, some divisions losing as much as seventy per cent. Divisions were kept on the firing line until they were completely shattered and it was a common thing for divisions to lose fifty per cent of their men before being withdrawn for reorganization.

With the American Army in France, May 18.—"Fighting was limited today to reconnaisance and intermittent artillery activity," says the latest war statement. "There was increased aerial activity north of Toul and in Lorraine."

An American pursued in an airplane crashed to earth behind our lines northwest of Toul last night. The reason is unknown. The machine was returning from a flight over the German lines. The information failed to state whether the pilot of the American plane was killed or injured.

London, May 18.—More than twenty-three tons of bombs were dropped by the British airmen on important railway centers, airdromes and billets behind the German lines Thursday, according to announcement from the British war office. Thirty German machines were destroyed and five more driven down.

The most futile thing in the world is to try to make an original remark about the weather.

A little Maryville girl whose father is a commercial traveler, sat on the porch holding a kitten, and creeping up close her mother heard this: "Kitty," said the young miss, "I know you, an' I know your mamma, an' I know all your little brothers an' sisters, but I ain't ever seen your papa"—then after a brief pause—"I spec' he must be a traveling man."

Washington correspondents might write better stories if they wrote what they found out instead of writing what they think they think.

We've noticed that when a doctor treats you he makes you pay for it.

Confession: As we grow older our ideas of amusements undergo a radical change. Fribstance, when a small boy, I was chiefly interested in the exhibits that composed a "Congress of Wonders," but now the amazing volubility of the spieler fascinates far more than other features of the show.

What has become of the old-fashioned fellows who used to pull off a badger fight in Maryville every once in a while on some unsuspecting "friend?"

Boarding house etiquette: Always pass the bread before helping yourself; the top piece may be dry.

A newspaper man's friend is one that gets him to keep an item out of the paper until after it is news.

Is it impossible for a woman to tie her shoe securely before starting down town, or is it all in the play?

One can attract about as much attention by being agreeable as in any other way.

Well, graduation time is over and we know now who started the war, what it was all about, who is going to win it, and what it means to make the world safe for democracy.

Agree to Aid County In Providing a Good Road On Both Sides of New Bridge at Pumping Station

At a meeting yesterday afternoon of the township board the question of whether or not the board should aid the county in making the fill in the road on either side of the new bridge and approaches at the pump station was discussed with the result that the work will be done under the direction of the township board. Judge Blackford, presiding judge of the county court, attended the meeting of the township board and explained the need for assistance by the township organization.

The work will be directed by Road Overseer Halaney and will require that the road be closed for several days next week, beginning Monday. A large amount of filling is necessary on both sides of the bridge and in some places will be as much as four or five feet. The township's road equipment will be placed at work there and will be rushed until the job is done.

700 HAVE JOINED THE NAVY

Missouri Men of All Ages Have Been Among the Recruits—700 Have Enlisted Since May 1

St. Louis, May 18.—Since May 1 700 young men have joined the United States marine corps and the navy in the recruiting campaign conducted by both arms of the service. Parades, band concerts, patriotic speeches have featured the campaign and stimulated recruiting. The marines are seeking 1,000 men, while the campaign for navy recruits is practically unlimited.

Men of all ages have been among the recruits, but the predominating class are those subject to the draft. By reason of special permission granted by Washington, registered men are eligible for either the marine corps or the navy, where they have a wide variety of field to serve in.

Since Monday of this week 138 men have been accepted by the marine corps, according to Lieut. Turin, commanding the local recruiting station.

Six hundred have been accepted by the navy since the first of May.

The matrons present were asked to write rules on "How to Manage a Husband," and the unmarried ladies on the same subject and these together with a favorite recipe from each comprised a booklet with a hand-painted cover and title page which was later presented to Miss Hope. Each guest, blindfolded, was then led to a row of lighted candles signifying happy wishes for the bride-to-be and tried her luck at blowing out the charmed flame. Relief from Eczema

Don't worry about eczema or other skin troubles. You can have a clear, healthy skin by using a little zemo, obtained at any drug store for 35c, or extra large bottle at $1.00.

Zemo generally removes pimples, blackheads, blotches, eczema, and ringworm and makes the skin clear and healthy. Zemo is a clean, penetrating, antiseptic liquid, neither sticky nor greasy and stains nothing. It is easily applied and costs a mere trifle for each application. It is always dependable.

THIS IS THE TRUE RED CROSS SPIRIT

A Little Story With a Big Thought in It.

A month ago the Red Cross chapter in Bay City, Mich., received a hurry-up call for 150 dunnage bags. Troops were about to move, and through an oversight their equipment was not complete. The bags had to be made and sent within 48 hours. A request for help was sent over the town, and the stores were searched successfully for the right materials. Among those who quickly responded and came to the chapter workrooms to help were two little girls, sisters, about ten and twelve years of age, each eager to lend a hand and do something for the boys who were going to the front. All day long the fingers of the women and the little girls were fairly flying. Bag after bag received the last stitch until scores were piled up ready for shipment. Closing time came, and the woman superintending the making of the bags counted those completed and announced that if every one of the workers could come early the next morning and work all day the bags would surely be finished in time for shipping by evening. Two crestfallen little girls, the little sisters, were waiting for her at the door as she departed.

Red Cross Dunnage Bags.

"We are awfully sorry, ma'am," said the older of the two, "but we can't come back tomorrow. You see tomorrow we have to—" And, without finishing the sentence, she looked back wistfully at the pile of bags.

"It is too bad you can't come back," said the superintendent, "but I want to thank you, and we all thank you, for the work you've done today. You two have been a wonderful help, and that pile of bags wouldn't be nearly so big if you hadn't been here. Good night."

The next morning when the superintendent came down to unlock the workrooms for the day she was astonished to see the two little girls standing in the cold by the locked door.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you!" she said. "I thought you said you couldn't come?"

"Oh, we knew those Red Cross bags just had to be finished for the soldiers," exclaimed the little one, with glistening eyes, "and we got up at three o'clock this morning and got the washing done early!"

GIVE ONIONSETS AWAY TODAY

Ten Bushels Were Distributed at Commercial Club Headquarters to All Who Came for Them

Notice by the Commercial Club that onion sets would be given away at the club rooms this afternoon served to bring several hundred persons to ask for packages. A detail of Scouts from Troop 1 was detailed to assist Secretary Claypool in the distribution, which began this afternoon at three o'clock. The sets are from a well known Iowa seed house and are first class. They were put up in one and two quart sacks and all to whom they were given were asked to plant them. The Commercial Club secured over 10 bushels of the sets.

Misses Hulda Barber and Madge West of Burlington Junction were among the out-of-town people in Maryville today.

After The War—You'll Likely Hear of Incidents Like This

(By Kenneth L. Roberts)

Flying their night sticks freely a squad of policemen forced their way through a howling, shrieking mob, dragging their prisoner with them. Fists were brandished wildly, canes and umbrellas rattled on the policeman's helmets and an occasional brick whistled past the ear of the cowering, pallid creature in their clutches.

The reporter spied the tumult from afar and bore down on the mob at full speed.

"What's the excitement?" he inquired, placing his hand on the arm of an enraged citizen who was making ready to hurl a beer bottle at the prisoner. "What did the man do? Is he a thief, or did he insult a woman?"

The enraged citizen wrenched himself free from the reporter's grip and hurled the beer bottle ferociously. "Kill him!" he howled. "Kill him!"

Shrugging his shoulders the reporter pushed his way deeper into the press. "What did the man do?" he asked an elderly gentleman with white mutton-chop whiskers, who was making determined but futile attempts to hit the prisoner on the head with a gold-headed cane. "Was he caught setting fire to a department store or planting a bomb in the railroad station?"

"Worse than that!" exclaimed the elderly gentleman hoarsely. "Stand back and give me elbow room! I want just one swing at this loathsome thing!"

Realizing the futility of questioning the elderly gentleman further, the reporter pressed on until he reached one of the policemen.

"What is it? Murder?" he asked hopefully, displaying his reporter's badge.

"Naw!" replied the policeman, surreptitiously prodding the cowering captive in the ribs with his night stick. "Nothing as harmless as that! The poor fool used to be in the German army, and he was showing an iron cross he received for fighting in Belgium!"

The reporter's face was convulsed with rage and incredulity. As the mob swept down the street he was seen to pick up a cobblestone and fight for an opportunity to get in the knock-out blow.

A Good Rain Yesterday.

The rain yesterday afternoon amounted to .71 of an inch, according to Weather Observer J. R. Brink. The rain was not as heavy over the county as it was in the Maryville vicinity, but it was a great help to the crops.

Soldier Wants Reality.

Human as anything in literature are the stories religious camp directors tell. Discussing the subjects that ministers should preach upon in the camps one man was reminded of the same old pessimist at Sailors Snug Harbor, who drew the Sunday stranger aside and asked him.

"Do you 'ave the downside that's a-goin' to preach to us today?"

"Yes, my good man."

"Then, for God's sake, sir," pleaded the old sailor, "don't say anything about the sea."

Like the sailor, the boys in camps are fed up with picturesque allusions to their calling. It is true that their favorite hymns include "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," Jews and Gentiles alike delighting to sing those stirring songs of manly battle for the right. But when the preacher stands before them in the "Y" hut on Sunday evening they want to hear the simple, sincere and elemental truth of religion as a preacher conceives it.

Said the religious director of one of America's largest embarkation camps: "The few hours that the boys spend at our camps are precious hours to them. We find that our service can't be on too lofty a plane or of too fine a spirit to suit them. The men lose their respect for us and for what we represent unless we appeal to the highest and best that is in them. If we don't give them the real thing they leave the hut in blocks. You can't fool boys with pulpit camouflage in their last hours in America."

"We usually open with fifteen minutes of movies. You don't mind waiting?"

"Is that sort of thing necessary?" asked the minister. "I don't believe it is. I should like to put it up to the boys, if you don't care."

"Go as far as you like," said the secretary.

The venerable preacher mounted the platform steps. "Boys," said he, "I've come here to tell you something about religion. Would you like to begin right away, or do you prefer a movie film first?"

A tall, raw-boned soldier lad stood in the audience.

"To hell with the movies!" he cried, waving his arm. "Let's hear about religion."

A Saratoga rector forsook his easy life of work in a southern naval camp. He preached one day in an outlying camp to a half hundred lusty young Americans, one of whom, a Tennessee mountaineer of forbidding aspect, waited for him after the service and offered to carry his handbag.

"That stuff you gave us," said the young American, "about some of the seed falling on hard ground and never taking root—it hit me right where I live. Hard ground; that's me. Now, how in hell can I soften?"

BOOT AND SHOE INDUSTRY LEADS IN MISSOURI

EMPLOY 19,677 WORKERS

Statistics Compiled by State Bureau Shows Beer Industry Is a Poor End In Manufacturing

Jefferson City, May 18.—While the brewers of the state have more money invested in their plants than any other single line of manufacturing, yet they do not employ the greatest number of people or pay the most wages, according to figures gathered by the Missouri Bureau of Labor Statistics, under the leadership of Commissioner William H. Lewis, for the 1918 "Red Book," the present year's report, now being compiled. The manufacturers of boots and shoes lead the list in the amount of wages paid and the number of people employed. Their yearly payroll is $11,894,346.

There are fifty-nine plants in the state manufacturing boots and shoes and they employ a total of 18,677 people, of which number 13,499 are males and 5,178 females. They have an investment in their plants of $37,628,436.

Outside of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, have shoe factories are to be found in Hannibal, Carthage, Louisiana, Moberly, Columbia, Jefferson City, Cape Girardeau, De Soto, Kirksville, Poplar Bluffs, Hermann, Washington, Union, Marshall, Mexico, St. Charles and Brookfield.

The value of boots and shoes and similar commodities made in Missouri during the year under consideration was $79,171,078.

There are thirty-one plants manufacturing beer and products of malt and they have a total investment of $67,741,025. They employ 6,617 people, of which number 7,241 are men and 376 females, and their usual payroll is $6,427,341.

While St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, the three big manufacturing centers of the state, produce most of the beer and other malt beverages "made in Missouri," breweries regardless of the prohibition movement which controls four-fifths of the rural portion, are still to be found in St. Charles, Hannibal, Springfield, Cape Girardeau, Appleton, Weston, Joplin, Lexington, Sedalia and Jefferson City.

The breweries of the state turned out this year products which had a total worth of $35,330,911, or about $4,500,000 less than half of the worth of the huge mountain of boots and shoes produced that year by Missouri's boot and shoe factories.

The foundries and machine shops come next to the boot and shoe manufacturers in the number of workmen employed. Of the former there are 387 plants, with a capital investment of $19,784,237. They employ a total of 16,981, and of this number but 172 are females. Their annual payroll is $9,383,568.

The huge packing houses of the state, chiefly located in St. Joseph and Kansas City, with a few scattered around over the state, turned out products worth $145,639,709, breaking all previous annual records, and making it, considering total worth alone, the leading industry of the state. Unfortunately for Kansas City and, therefore, Missouri, the packing houses of that section are located just across the state line in Kansas, but transact their business through Kansas City. Figures for these plants are not included.

There are forty-eight packing plants with a capital investment of $24,124,261 and a payroll of $4,011,879 per year. They employ 5,984 men and 435 women and girls.

Missouri's printing and publishing establishments number 1,269 and they have an invested capital of $22,965,342 and employ 12,342 males and 3,434 females. The annual payroll was $14,448,767, and the worth of output that year was $41,533,848.

The worth of the annual output of several other manufacturing lines for the same period was: Flour, feed, etc., $50,593,551; tobacco, cigarettes, $34,069,631; bakeries, $23,389,920; lumber, timber, boxes, crates, etc., $24,301,240; men's clothing $41,533,848.

Washington, The City of Lonesome Girlies

(By Edna Huber Church)

Washington, May 18.—"The City of Lonesome Girlies." That is Washington.

It is safe to say that more girls cry themselves to sleep in Washington each night than in any other city in the whole wide world.

Approximately 50,000 girls have come to Washington since the war began. Every one of the 50,000 is a little homesick girlie, too. They have come from every corner of the Union and from every city and hamlet. Every one of them wants to go back home, too.

It is all because Washington is a great big lonesome town. It is a town of grand distances and every little stranger is overawed by the big things and the big people here and she wants to get back to the home folks and the family circle. Uncle Sam can't spare her, though, because he needs every bit of help that he can get to win this war.

Each day sees a new flood of girls coming to Washington "to work for the government." Each night finds the new girls looking for a home, and a terrible task it is. With housing conditions overworked already and rooms a scarcity the lone girl has a pretty stiff proposition before her. The Y. W. C. A. and other organizations have tried to help her, but they can't bring in the comforts that mother provides.

More than 50,000 girls are leading lonely lives in Washington just to help the nation win the war. It is true, of course, that they are receiving good wages and have to work comparatively short hours, but there are more things in life than that.

Washington is not a cordial city. The stranger within its gates has to seek long and hard for friends. So the bashful girl who comes here without friends often finds herself a little outcast in a great big city of magnificent distances.

It is mighty hard, too, with all the rest of the city apparently enjoying itself. Churches and social organizations are just awakening to the fact that they have a duty to perform. Strenuous efforts are now being made to reach all of the lonesome girls. Of course, there are many who are missed.

Mail men have to suffer, too, because of this lonesomeness. The men under closest observation in Washington are the mailmen. Every morning on every front doorstep you can see a lonesome girl waiting for the mailman to see if he has a letter from home.

Sunday afternoon they clutter the parks and public buildings. Lonesome girls have a lonesome time seeing the sights. It is really pitiful.

It is to the credit of the young women of America, however, that the turnover of labor in Washington's offices and departments has been comparatively small. Despite their lonesomeness the girls are sticking it out and helping to win the war.

All of the brave hearts in this war are not on the battlefields of France. There are thousands of brave hearts in the lonesome girls of Washington.

Now for Strawberries

WHAT YOU CAN DO WITH THEM

The Season's Short, So Use Them Often and Be Sure to Preserve Them When the Price is Lowest

(By Loretto C. Lynch, Instructor War Cookery, N. Y. Eve. High School for Women).

"Now that strawberries are among us once again," to quote a dear old lady, I ask you, Mrs. Housewife, what are you going to do about it? You are going to leave out the heavy plum pudding, the pumpkin pie and the expensive ice cream from your dessert list and you're going to put in luscious fresh strawberries and for variety, strawberries prepared in various ways.

But strawberries have no food value? True, they have no food value, but they supply mineral salts needed by the blood and give pleasant variety to the diet.

Strawberries should be rinsed in a colander under running water before being hulled, otherwise much of the juice will be lost. In order to save sugar, sprinkle the prepared berries with sugar and set them aside in a cool place for several hours before serving. The sugar gets a chance to "soak in," so to speak, whereas sugar is often left on the plates if berries are hastily sprinkled by each one at table.

Then for variation you want shortcake. I have had excellent results using fifty per cent wheat flour and the same quantity of rice flour. Use your best biscuit recipe and increase the quantity of shortening to make the product a "shortcake."

Split the biscuit dough while hot, spread out sugared berries between the layers and whole berries on top. Add the white of one egg to the cream and whip together. This helps to make the cream stand up and also increases the bulk of the cream.

And for Sunday dinner plan a frozen dessert. Make it "frozen strawberries" instead of expensive ice cream. Mash a quart of prepared berries with a cup or more of sugar, according to the sweetness of the berries. Add the juice of two lemons and a quart of cold water. Taste the mixture. It should be sweeter than is generally liked, because a frozen dainty being so cold never tastes as sweet as it really is. Turn into the freezer and freeze, using one part coarse salt to three parts crushed ice.

Strawberry pudding, which would surely meet with Mr. Hoover's approval, is made with a corn starch base. For a family of four, mix together in the top of a double boiler four level tablespoons of sugar and the same quantity of corn starch. Add to this half a cup of strawberry syrup made by boiling together one-quarter of a cup of berries and a tablespoon of sugar for three minutes. The resulting syrup should be strained. Add one and one-half measuring cups of scalded milk. Cook directly over the flame, stirring constantly until the mixture begins to thicken. Then place over the bottom of the double boiler and steam for twenty minutes. Pour into moulds previously dipped into cold water.

When cold, unmold and garnish each pudding with crushed strawberries. And, of course, you'll want to store up some of this "Crimson Sunshine" for next winter. But just how will you do it?

Many people have known some strawberry jam only by its label. As far as one might judge by the taste it might have been molasses or raspberry or most any other berry jam. But if you'll follow these directions you'll have jam that is unmistakably "strawberry jam."

For a small or trial amount, allow one so-called quart box of berries and one-half measuring cup of sugar. In a colander, wash the berries and then hull them. Put the berries in an agate preserving kettle and cover with the sugar. Set them aside, having covered the pot, and let them stand over night. Then crush and heat gradually to the boiling point and boil about twenty minutes, removing the scum as it rises. Larger quantities must be cooked longer. Pour into jelly glasses previously dipped into boiling water and set aside to cool. When cold, pour melted parrafine over the top of each glass and store in a dark place, or wrap each glass in thick paper to prevent fading of the color of the fruit.

The strawberry season is short at best.

Serve berries often and in varied forms and then when the market is lowest store some up for next winter. I am sure your efforts will be repaid when the frosty days return.

There is one thing about grass widows—they are seldom green.

MAIL VIA AIR ROUTE

PRACTICABILITY OF AIRPLANE SERVICE IS DEMONSTRATED

EXTENSIONS PLANNED

The Next Route to Be Tried Will Probably Be From New York to Boston — Use Training Planes

Washington, May 18.—With the establishment of a regular airplane mail service between Washington and New York the postoffice considers that the project is experimental only in the sense that a now familiar means of locomotion is to be put to a practically new use. The war has demonstrated effectively that the airplane as a conveyance is almost as dependable and safe as an automobile, so the only real obstacle in the way of successfully operating the new air lines is maintaining service under all kinds of weather conditions.

The war department has furnished large training planes for use in the new service. Aviators have been detailed from the ranks of fighting airmen, as war department officials feel that the newly commissioned officers will acquire valuable training in piloting the big mail carriers over long cross country flights.

The planes, each capable of a minimum speed of ninety miles an hour, are built along the lines of the regulation bombing machine. They are one-seaters, as a maximum of space is desired in the fuselage for the storing of the mail bags.

The schedule provides for the departure of one plane each day from both Washington and New York. The machines leave promptly at 11:30 in the morning and it is hoped to have the mail deposited at the terminals not more than three hours later. Starting from the Mall in Washington, near the Washington monument, the trip to Philadelphia, about 135 miles, is expected to be made in about an hour and twenty minutes. At the hangars in North Philadelphia another machine will be waiting, ready to start the flight to New York as soon as the incoming plane lands and the transfer of mail bags is made. The second leg of the journey from Philadelphia to Belmont Field, in the Long Island suburbs of New York, should be made in about an hour. The larger planes carry 600 pounds of mail, or approximately 24,000 letters. The smaller machines will carry about half that much.

Emergency landing fields will be established at Baltimore and Havre de Grace, Md.; Wilmington, Del.; and at either Princeton or New Brunswick, N. J. In case of a machine breaking down at some interurban point in its journey, the mail sacks will be reached by motor truck and rushed to the nearest railroad station, where they will be sent forward in care of a courier.

The rate of postage has been established by law at 24 cents an ounce or fraction thereof. However, this entitles the sender to have the letter forwarded to the addresses by special delivery service in case the airplane arrives too late for the regular city deliveries.

Letters mailed at Washington, Philadelphia or New York for delivery in any part of the country may have their delivery facilitated by sending them on the first part of the journey by airplane. In each city postmasters have designated the stations and the hours at which letters for airplane dispatch may be mailed.

A special stamp has been designated for the new service. It has a red border and shows an airplane in flight in a blue field.

The first stamp was sold to Postmaster General Burleson, who addressed a letter to Postmaster Patten of New York. After cancellation of the stamp the letter was autographed by President Wilson and placed in the first consignment of mail directed to New York. The letter will be sold at auction, the proceeds to be devoted to war relief.

During the first months of the service no flights will be made when the storm conditions make the journey very precarious. On these days the sacks will be forwarded by special delivery service. Otto Prager, second assistant postmaster general, who has charge of the new service, believes that sufficient experience will be gained during the summer to make possible an effective maintenance of the service during the winter. The great difficulty is in landing successfully in a heavy rain or snow storm.

As the present routes prove successful, plans will be made for expanding the service next spring to other parts of the country. The first extension, Mr. Prager says, probably will be from New York to Boston. To eliminate delay arrangements are being worked out for the construction of large nets on the roofs of the central postoffices so that the bags may be dropped while the machine is in flight.

Will McDowell of Bedford, Ia., who has been the guest since Thursday of his brother, H. S. McDowell, and wife, living north of Maryville, left this morning for Williamsburg, Kans., to visit his parents. Mr. McDowell leaves May 25 with the contingent from Bedford for Camp Dodge, Ia.
